

Gameserver rental terms and conditions

The minimum rental period is 1 calendar month and the rental fee is non-refundable. When your server has been paid for in full, we are notified to fulfil your order. Your rental period will not start until the day we give you access to your server. The current maximum waiting period is 24 hours from completion of your order until it is available.

Users are permitted to run one game process on their server. REC-hosting will include the necessary files for the chosen game upon completion of the clan rental form. the user is responsible for ensuring that they have permission to use any MODs or maps used on their server.

The server may not be used for commercial purposes

The server may not be named offensively or in a way to reflect a commercial organisation

Clans are allowed to alter the maxrate setting on servers up to a value of 15,000.

The gaming server is for the sole purpose of hosting a game process. it may not be used to host files, downloads or the like, this includes the uploading of any files, images or software not directly associated with the running of the game process. any such abuse of the server will result in service being suspended and the forfeiture of outstanding rental payments.

Clans will have two weeks notice before the end of their rental in which to re-new their contract before their server is reallocated. hence you will have the option to keep your server without any interruption to service.

The user is responsible for uploading any updated maps, MODs and the like to their server. In certain circumstances REC-hosting will help, for example with new releases of large files or complex situations the users can't deal with, but the day to day management is down to the user.

You may not increase the player limits on your server (this includes spectators) without the prior permission of REC-hosting and payment of the difference in rental prices, doing so will put your server offline until you decrease the player limits to their original settings. We are unable to offer refunds to clans who wish to reduce player numbers for any reason.

In the context of this document "server" means single game process.*

In the context of this document "user" means the person who made the rental order with REC-hosting.*